JESS / KELLY
LUXURY FINE ART

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE… November 18, 2026

THE IRISH COAST TO ATLANTA:
LUXURY FINE ARTIST JESS KELLY BRINGS INTERNATIONAL ART PRACTICE STATESIDE THIS DECEMBER

Fresh Off a Haute Living Feature + Dublin Simon Community's Christmas Art Auction, Kelly Begins New Chapter

ATLANTA: Coastlines, natural textures and architectural forms sit at the heart of Jess Kelly's work. The Irish-Mexican luxury fine artist is known for her luminous, large-scale textural artworks, pieces that have found homes in private residences, hotels and restaurants across Europe and beyond. This December, she makes Atlanta home, relocating with her family from Ireland.

Her move follows a standout fall. In October, Haute Living sat down with Kelly for an exclusive interview on her relocation to Atlanta. This season, she is also among the Irish artists donating original work to A Community of Hope, Dublin Simon Community's annual Christmas art auction supporting people experiencing homelessness, alongside contributions from Bono, The Corrs and Imelda May. The auction runs online through Dec. 9.

With an established international portfolio spanning luxury residences and acclaimed hospitality destinations, Kelly now brings her art to Atlanta, where she will continue building relationships with leading interior designers, private collectors and hospitality partners. And artistry, it seems, is a family affair: her nine-year-old son, actor Harvey Moloney, was recently cast in the Prime Video series "Boys of Tommen."

"Having built my art practice internationally, I'm incredibly excited to begin this next chapter in Atlanta. I've always loved the relationship between art and interiors, and the opportunity to create something truly personal for a home or space. Atlanta has such a strong design community, and I'm looking forward to collaborating with designers, collectors and those who appreciate the impact of original art. It's also a wonderful new adventure for our family, especially with Harvey's exciting opportunities in acting. The timing feels right for us all," said Kelly.

Kelly builds movement through layering and texture, finishing each piece with light-catching detail, an approach she describes as luxury fine art with a metallic twist. Her collection includes original works, signature editions, prints and minis. She also creates bespoke commissions in close collaboration with collectors and designers, shaping each piece around the space it is made for.

Her pieces can be found everywhere from the Conrad Residences in Quinta do Lago, Portugal, Lough Eske Castle in Donegal, Ireland, and Michelin-starred Dede Restaurant in West Cork to John Cullen Lighting in Dubai and Hill House Interiors in London. She has collaborated with Irish fine jewelry brand Chupi and interiors brand Scatter Box, held four solo exhibitions in Ireland and created bespoke works for private collectors worldwide, including many in the United States. Along the way, she has earned coverage in IMAGE Magazine, The Gloss and the Irish Independent, among others.

To explore Kelly's work or purchase a gift card this season, visit jesskellyart.com or follow her on Instagram at @jesskelly.art. Interviews with Jess Kelly and high-resolution images of her work are available upon request. Kelly is available to speak on luxury fine art, commissioning custom art for the home, the intersection of art and interior design, hospitality and commercial projects, and building an international art career from Ireland to the U.S.

ABOUT JESS KELLY: Jess Kelly is an Irish-Mexican luxury fine artist whose large-scale textural works, inspired by coastlines and architectural forms, are held in private collections and featured in residences, hotels and restaurants across Europe, the Middle East and beyond. Known for luxury fine art with a metallic twist, Kelly creates original works, signature editions and bespoke commissions for collectors and designers worldwide. Relocating to Atlanta in December 2026, she is expanding her practice into the U.S. luxury art and design market. To learn more, visit jesskellyart.com or follow on social @jesskelly.art

Media Contacts: Tara Murphy + Kayla Kaiser | 360 Media, Inc. | tara@360media.net or 404-577-8686

# #